THE LAKE BRUCE CONSERVANCY DISTRICT NEWS

The Lake Bruce Conservancy District met Thursday, April 10, in the community room of the Kewanna-Union Township Fire Station for its regular monthly meeting. Three of the five directors, 13 freeholders and two guests were in attendance.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved. There was no treasurer's report as the treasurer, Rick Tompos, was out-of-state- to attend a funeral. The chairman, Norm Steigely, reported on correspondence received during the past month.

It was reported that the conservancy had received a letter from the Indiana Department of Revenue concerning the increase in sales tax.

The conservancy's billing company, Quality Assurance, has been trying to talk to someone with the Indiana Department of Revenue, but has been unable to get through by telephone. The company believes that conservancies are exempt from sales tax. Quality Assurance will continue to try to make contact. A letter was also received from Wightman-Petrie officially reporting that hazardous conditions were present at the westside vacuum station. An e-mail was also received from the conservancy attorney stating that he had been contacted by EPA and that their testing showed on PCBs in the contaminate. This means that the ban on using well water in the area has been lifted.

Steigely reported that he had been in touch with the dredging company about reclaiming the holding area and was told that as soon as it dries out enough to bring in a dozer, he will get it done. Bob Broda and Director Gerald Porter reported on their efforts on the dry hydrant program. They said they had met with state engineers on two occasions and that they are currently in the process of drawing up the plans. They went on to say the engineer stated that by working with them, a discount on some materials could be made available.

The subject of hiring a secretary was once again brought up. This position would require about twenty hours of work a week and those hours could be flexible as long as they include four hours on Saturday morning to enable weekenders to have access for conservancy business. The subject of office space is still on hold.

The chairman noted to all present that when it comes time for property owners to hire a contractor to connect them to the sewer system, they should be very careful. Stories have surfaced from other sewer projects in the area of contractors taking money but never showing up to do the work. Property owners were cautioned to not pay monies up front as a reputable contractor would not require it. There were also reports of poor workmanship being done by fly-by-nighters, including cave-ins and leaks. Using a quality contractor is important as property owners are responsible for their connection and any subsequent work that may need to be done to repair problems. Property owners should check references given by their contractor unless they have done business with them previously. Due to liability issues, the conservancy district will not recommend or approve any contractor.

Steigely also noted that although the westside vacuum station is shut down, work continues on the rest of the project. Presently, the Indiana Department of Environmental Management (IDEM) is in charge of the contaminated site and responsible for clean-up. Since the source of the contamination has not been determined. The time it will take to get everything cleaned up is not known at this time. The conservancy has been told by those in control that they will move as fast as possible so as to not hold up the sewer project.

Steigely read Wightman-Petrie's monthly progress report. Work has begun on the treatment plant and electricity has been brought to all areas that need it. Wightman-Petrie will be working with the Fulton County Highway Department during the next month on road restoration.

Lake Enhancement Chairman Gerald Porter again stated that no funds would be forthcoming this year from LARE. This means that the district will have to work with the money that had been budgeted for 2008. Weed Patrol will be surveying the lake as soon as weeds start to grow to determine how much weed control is needed. If it is more than what the district has money for, a hard decision will have to be made on what areas have the highest priority for treatment.

Directors Gerald Porter and Norm Steigely met with the contractors, engineers and Rural Development to approve requests for payments from the contractors. A total of $47,341.82 was approved for payment this month. The majority of the cost was for mobilization of equipment. Rural Development informed the district at the meeting that as soon as an area was approved to accept waste, the monthly rate would increase to $73.50 per month. This would apply even though your property has not been hooked up yet. So, it is in the best interest to hook your property up as soon as possible after notification to proceed. It was noted that this means that not all properties would go on-line at the same time.

Porter wrapped up the meeting with a presentation on goose nest and egg control. This is a program of treating goose eggs so they cannot hatch. Anyone can apply to get a permit to do this at no cost. For more information on how this works or if you would like to volunteer to help, contact Gerald.

The meeting adjourned at 8:48 p.m. The next meeting will be at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 8, at the same location. All meetings are open to the free holders and other interested parties.

Chiropractic philosophy begins with the principle that the human organism has an innate power to maintain its own health. The art of chiropractic focuses on adjustments to correct spinal malfunctions, called subluxations, in order to remove interference to the spinal cord and the nerves that exit between the bones of the spine. Science has found that the nerve system controls all other organs and tissues of the body, so a nerve system functioning at its best facilitates the body's ability to cope with disability and disease. Because of its potential to enable patients to live healthier, more fulfilling lives, chiropractic has been called "The Big Idea."

Looking Back.....

SIXTY YEARS AGO
April 15, 1948

Harry Farr, daytime town police officer, has resigned his office and Elmer Hickle has been appointed to succeed him. Mr. Farr has held the position for almost a year, taking over when David Metzger resigned. Mr. Hickle is familiar with the job, having held it once before. Mr. Farr will work with Woolington and Son, local contractor.

Work will start next week on Kewanna's new ball park. Several lots have been purchased back of the Henry Montz property for the new diamond. The ground given some time ago by Charles Van Meter for a park will also be included in the park area.

The large, modern farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moon near Lake Bruce was completely destroyed by fire last Thursday morning. Johnny Walters, a bakery salesman for Stewart Bakery in Rochester, noticed the fire and notified the Kewanna and Monterey fire departments. The cause of the fire was a defective chimney. It was the fourth time the house has suffered a fire.

Mrs. Ernest Brockey, assisted by Mrs. Gerald Doud, entertained at a miscellaneous shower last Thursday for Mrs. Frank Lamb, a recent bride.

Daniel Bauman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bauman, and a student at Kewanna High School, received a certificate of award for placing first in the regional geometry contest held in Rochester. He will compete in the state finals at Bloomington April 24.

FIFTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
April 17, 1953

Everett Murhling reports that he has found 595 mushrooms.

Two Kewanna servicemen were among the 2,933 who docked in Seattle on Thursday, April 9, aboard the Navy transport General C.C. Ballou from the Far East. They are Major Roy Hogan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elra Hogan, and Cpl. Harold Wentzel, son of Mrs. Amanda Wentzel.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dittman of Fulton will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, April 26, with an open house at their home.

The Rochester City Dairy was selling milk for $.75 a gallon at the store or at your door.

Mrs. Rex Murray entertained the bridge club Tuesday. Mrs. Eldonna Mulhouser of Culver and Mrs. Robert Lord were guests. Prizes were won by Mrs. Kenneth Hiland and Mrs. Hugh Cook.

The Prairie Grove Ladies Aid Society was entertained recently in the home of Mrs. Eri Meiser with Mrs. Gerald Doud as her co-hostess.

FIFTY YEARS AGO
April 17, 1958

Lawrence Perry, Jr., 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Perry, Rt. 3, Kewanna, fractured his left leg Saturday when he fell from a tractor and was run over by a disk.

Seventeen lines on the Kewanna branch of United Telephone were out of commission for a brief period Friday afternoon when an underground cable on the Gregory Arens farm east of the IOOF Cemetery was broken by a steel fence post. John Moore, who farms the Arens farm, hit the cable while making fence.

Helena Shine and Theodore White of Kewanna were married at 5 p.m. Saturday, April 12, at St. Ann's Rectory by Father James Fitzgerald. Mrs. James Walsh of Detroit attended her aunt as matron of honor and James White served as best man. Only the immediate families were present.

Pat Kumler returned to Indianapolis Sunday after spending the weekend here with relatives and friends.

Mrs. Richard Hoff of Logansport was the guest of honor at a pink and blue shower Sunday afternoon, April 13, in the home of Mrs. Oscar Mannies at Grass Creek. The hostesses for the occasion were Elaine Hoff, Carol Mannies, Jean Ann Smith and Vicky Saylors.

FORTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
April 18, 1963

AG CLASS COMPLETES SUCCESSFUL PROJECT

Thanks to Field, the group had the opportunity to work with their heads and hands as they assembled 30 feeding units. The units consisted of creep hog feeders, eight bushel hog feeders and 40 and 60 bushel hog feeders. The biggest project was the assembling of a six-ton bulk beef feeder.

With the help of Garold and Mark Field, the students not only learned how to do quality work but were shown the importance of cleaning up scrap and putting away tools.

The project required 10 class periods to complete. Outside of a few scratches and small cuts, the students agreed that it was a worthwhile learning experience.

Mr. Field treated the group to a wiener roast along with potato chips, cookies and marshmellows; and all the pop they could drink in an hour.

Nashville Revisited

Since winter seemed extra tedious this year and spring so slow in arriving, Joe and I decided to try to find spring for a couple days last week. Our first thought was Madison down along the Ohio River, but subsequently we decided on our perennial favorite – Nashville in Brown County. The drive time is less and that's important at today's gasoline prices.

As soon as we dropped the grandkids at the bus stop, we headed south, stopping on the north side of Indianapolis for breakfast. We drove through a little rain, but by the time we reached Nashville the sun was out. The grass was greener than home, and the forsythia, magnolia and ornamental pear were in bloom – it sure was a welcome sight!

As soon as we hit the outskirts of Nashville, Joe dropped me off and headed for the nearest golf course. I visited several shops until I could check into our B & B. When Joe returned, we went back to one of the shops to purchase a clock I had been considering the last three visits to Nashville. You may have guessed– an impulse shopper I and not!

Nashville has a population of about 825, a couple hundred more than Kewanna. It was incorporated in 1872, a year after Kewanna was.

Nashville, however, has a thriving tourist industry based on its numerous (300) specialty shops, art and craft studios and galleries.

With the opening of a rail station in Helmsburg, six miles from Nashville, the area became more accessible to travelers and tourists. Writers began to tell about the natural beauty of the area and the quaint village of Nashville, creating the foundation for the artist colony. Artists from around the country began to make Nashville their home, including T. C. Steele and Adolph Schulz.

When you get hungry, there are 26 restaurants in and around Nashville, 10 candy, ice cream and nut shops and only two fast food chains. Deciding on where to eat can be a major problem.

The area offers locally owned and managed hotel, motels and B&Bs along with numerous cabins and vacation homes. Nashville at one time had a large serpentarium – which now houses our B&B! Hopefully, all the former residents found new homes and weren't left behind!

More than a million people per year also visit nearby Brown County State Park. Other points of interest near Nashville include the cities of Columbus and Bloomington, Hoosier National Forest, Lake Lemon, Lake Monroe and Yellowwood State Forest.

Brown County State Park is now the largest landholding in the Indiana State Park system, but the area has a long history of abuse by man. Heavy logging in the area caused significant deforestation, which resulted in erosion problems. From 1840 to nearly the turn of the century, very little of Brown County escaped the cutting crews. They quickly removed the largest trees, the trunks of which were used for massive beams for buildings and bridges. Even the smaller oaks and hickories were marketed to the barrel and cooperage trades. The present forest is therefore relatively young with large white oak, tulip and black walnut trees noticeably absent.

The late Lee Bright of Nashville, a school teacher turned insurance salesman, was distraught by the devastation of the forest in Brown County and the resulting departure of many of its residents. In an effort to restore the area to economic health, he wanted to foster the young tourist trade.

He also visualized a state park, but at that time Indiana law did not authorize the purchase of land for parks. It could, however, buy land for preserves. By 1926, Bright, as an agent for the state, had purchased enough land to establish a game reserve in Brown County. The abandoned farmland with depleted soil, eroded hillsides and tree stumps, were to become a deer release site and a farm for rearing game birds. Since 1941, the former game reserve has been administered as a State Park. The park offers an inn, family campground, horsemen's campground and miles and miles of trails.

Brown County State Park is a favorite get-away spot for our daughter and her family, as well as other state-owned and operated parks in Indiana. As I mentioned earlier, the high cost of gasoline makes visiting Indiana locations a good option, and there are numerous scenic locations, resorts, museums, festivals, etc. to choose from. Information is easily found on the Internet at VisitIndiana.com.

The second day of our mini vacation was spent at Edinburgh – Joe at Timbergate Golf Course and myself at the outlet mall. Again, I did a lot of looking but not much buying. It was a little windy, but the temps were nearly 70 and it just felt good to be out and about, especially considering the weathermen were forecasting a cold, wet weekend. In fact, Saturday, we fired up the Ben Franklin!

If you have a favorite Hoosier location you enjoy, let us know, perhaps other readers will enjoy it, too!

Buyer Beware: Online Pharmacies

Pat Smith
Director of Media Marketing
pmhnet.com

Buying prescription medications online can save time. It might also save you some money. But Pulaski Memorial Hospital wants to caution you that this convenience is not risk-free.

According to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, some Web sites aren't licensed as U.S. pharmacies, may not protect your confidential information, and may sell medications that are counterfeit, expired, contain dangerous ingredients, are too strong or too weak, aren't FDA approved, and aren't produced, labeled, stored or shipped correctly.

To protect yourself and your family, ask your doctor for an updated prescription, making sure he or she is aware of all prescription medicines, over-the-counter drugs and nutritional supplements you're taking. Then, choose a Web site that:

1. Is licensed by the board of pharmacy in the state where it is physically located.
2. Is accredited as a Verified Internet Pharmacy Practice Site (VIPPS) by the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy. To receive this accreditation, pharmacies must meet state licensing requirements while also complying with VIPPS regulations on patient privacy, prescription authentication and security, quality assurance, and the patient-pharmacist relationship.
3. Has a licensed pharmacist available to answer questions.
4. Requires a prescription from a physician or other medical professional who can legally prescribe drugs.
5. Provides a phone number and address so that you can contact representatives with questions.
6. Provides comprehensive privacy protections for your financial and personal health information

HEALTH OFFICIALS WARN WARMER WEATHER DOES NOT MEAN A BREAK FROM INFECTIOUS DISEASES

INDIANAPOLIS – As Hoosiers begin to enjoy the warmer weather of spring, the last thing on their minds are influenza (flu), colds, norovirus (viral gastroenteritis), and other infectious diseases. State health officials warn the arrival of spring doesn't mean an end to the need to protect yourself from infectious diseases.

"Proper hand washing is the single most important means to preventing infection," said Jean Svendsen," chief nurse consultant at the Indiana State Department of Health.

At a minimum, Svendsen recommends hands should be washed:

- After using the restroom
- After diapering a child or assisting a child to use the restroom
- After caring for someone who is ill
- After cleaning soiled areas
- After coughing or sneezing into hands or using facial tissues
- Before and after preparing food.

Health officials also recommend people cough or sneeze into their sleeve, rather than their hands, if a disposable tissue isn't available. Hoosiers are also encouraged to stay home from work or school when they are sick to help prevent the spread of infection.

For more information about proper hand washing, go to www.statehealth.in.gov/healthinfo/handwashing.htm.

EARTH TALK

Questions & Answers About Our Environment

Dear EarthTalk: I've found environmentally friendly shoes for myself, but have had trouble finding similar shoes for my kids. Are they out there? -- Dawn Masterson, Augusta, GA

Kids' shoes are a quickly expanding market and companies with a green perspective are now jumping into the race with mini versions of everything from flip-flops to slippers to heeled dress shoes. While green kids' shoes from makers like Simple, which offers organic cotton EcoSneaks with car tire soles, might seem expensive at $40 or more, they are durable enough to get passed around from sibling to sibling. "It is an investment if you're going to do quality," says Craig Throne, general manager of footwear at Patagonia.

Patagonia has been making climbing gear and outdoors wear for over 30 years, and is committed to using sustainable materials—including recycled polyester and only organic cotton in their clothes. Using hemp and recycled rubber content, the company has created kids' shoes that are rugged and sturdy enough for hiking or climbing, or for simply running around in the back yard.

Of course, packaging plays a big role and in Patagonia's case that means 100 percent recycled content boxes with soy-based inks and fun graphics that encourage kids to reuse the boxes. "We're getting kids to participate and be more aware of the outdoor world," says Throne.

Timberland has launched its own line of sustainable kids' shoes, too. "Kids today are learning about the environment at a younger and younger age—in many cases, they're even teaching their parents," says Lisa DeMarkis, head of Timberland's kid's division. "It's important to show kids that even small choices can have a positive impact."

The company strives to use the most environmentally friendly materials when possible—like recycled soda bottles (PET) in linings or meshes, recycled laces and organic cotton canvas—while always making sure that the shoes meet performance goals: "At the end of the day, the shoe has to stand up to kids and their daily adventures," DeMarkis says. Curious customers can read the "nutritional labels," which include the amount of renewable energy used in production, right on Timberland's 100 percent post consumer recycled shoeboxes.

Parents looking to avoid leather in their kids' shoes, whether for ethical or environmental reasons, have to do a bit of hunting online. While many vegetarian and non-leather clothing sites have yet to add kids' shoes, KidBean.com has, including the popular baby shoes called Isabooties, which are made with soft, synthetic Ultrasuede.

For parents of budding dancers, a vegan alternative ballet slipper can be had from the Cynthia King Dance Studio in Brooklyn, New York. The dance instructor and studio owner approached a local shoemaker when she couldn't find an affordable outlet for vegan slippers, and now provides them to the world at large.

NIPSCO URGES SAFETY MEASURES AROUND SUBSTATIONS

MERRILLVILLE, Ind. – In response to the rising number of thieves attempting to steal copper wire from utilities across the country and throughout Indiana, Northern Indiana Public Service Company (NIPSCO) cautions anyone from entering electric facilities and cutting any wires from electric poles or equipment, and urges customers to report any suspicious activity.

"NIPSCO has experienced a number of copper wire thefts in the last year," said Colleen Reilly, Director of Communications & Public Affairs. "These criminals don't realize the dangers and consequences associated with this type of activity. The result could be serious injury or death."

In addition to the potential for serious personal injury, resulting damages can cause extensive power outages, explosions, fires and other disruptions to service.

Warning signs are prominently displayed on the fencing surrounding electric substations, due to the high voltage used in the substations. Never enter a substation and do not touch any electrical equipment, power lines, or any items that may be in contact with a power line, as attempting to cut or remove wiring is highly dangerous.

Parents are also urged to remind their children to stay away from substations. As children get outside in the spring and summer months, baseballs and other objects can accidentally end up inside a substation. Do not enter the substation. Contact public safety officials or NIPSCO if you need help retrieving an item from a substation.

NIPSCO strongly encourages customers to contact local law enforcement and the company in the event of any suspicious activity taking place at the substations or around other facilities.

Assessing Officials attend annual meeting

Township trustees met recently with John Toumey, a representative from the Department of Local Government Finance, for their annual meeting. At this meeting, the assessors learned about the changes made to the property tax system in the last year. One of the major changes is the investment deduction credit where businesses and farmers could claim a credit on new equipment and structures purchased since the last assessment date. This does not apply for 2008. If you claimed new equipment or a structure last year that can still be claimed for 2008 it will drop down to the next line. Also this year, inventory is no longer required to be reported on Forms 102, 103 and/or 104 for the March 1, 2008 assessment date.

The assessors also reviewed the personal property tax forms to be used this year. These forms are used by business and farmers to report their equipment for local property taxes. The filing deadline for these forms is May 15, 2008. Failure to file a return by May 15 will result in a penalty.

Examples of personal property for individuals include campers, ATVs, snowmobiles, golf carts and human powered boats. For farmers and businesses, this would include the equipment used to produce income for them.

Personal property tax forms can be obtained from your township trustee, from the assessor's office located in the Fulton County Office Building or from the state website at www.in.gov/dglf.

Application for property tax exemption, form 136, needs to be filed by May 15 in the Fulton County assessor's office. Failure to file could result in denial of application for exemption. If you have any questions, contact the Fulton County assessor's office at 574-223-2801.
